This study was conducted from a representative sample of 506 young people on November 24th to 28th, using a nationwide panel of individuals between the ages of 13 and 24.

The Generation Lab conducts polling using a demographically representative panel of young people from counties selected by applying probability proportional to size (PPS) sampling to ensure that all individuals in the population have the same probability of selection irrespective of the size of their county.

We add individuals to the Generation Lab Youth Panel by disseminating digital media ads at selected counties. The final frame used in our polling closely resembles a probability-based panel of individuals between the ages of 13 and 24 in the United States. The results of this survey were weighted based on age, sex, race, and education using statistics from the Census Bureau.
The Generation Lab is a polling and research firm studying young people and the trends that shape their world.

We translate youth views and behavior for media, academia, businesses, government, and the American public. Whether through a one-day snapshot poll, or a multi-year longitudinal study, we pursue youth truth for our clients and the American public.
