A study on student views on determinants of financial success, based on a survey of 978 college students in October 2023
The backdrop: Stagnant wages, high house prices, skyrocketing student loans, and inflation have caused concern about the future financial wellbeing of young people.

The state of play: By now, most people realize that avocado toast is not the culprit when it comes to the inability of young adults to own their own home. But is home ownership even the goal anymore? Perhaps today’s college students have differing views from previous generations when it comes to the meaning of financial wellbeing and success.

So: Generation Lab and Morning Brew asked hundreds of young people around the country to explain their thoughts on financial success and what it means to them.

Based on a survey of 978 college students, conducted in October 2023.
Overall

❖ Most students expect to become financially successful in their 30s
❖ For most students, wealth and leisure time signify success more than job security or home ownership

Examples of Success

❖ Students see mainstream tech CEOs like Bill Gates, Elon Musk, and Jeff Bezos as major beacons of financial success
❖ Taylor Swift embodies financial success more than Warren Buffett or Mark Zuckerberg

Financial Advice

❖ There’s a lot of info about finances in media - but most college students still get their advice from friends, family, and financial institutions
❖ 64% of students rely on parents and family members as their main source of financial advice
